

The Midlands Regional Branch Of The British Polymer Clay Guild

Newsletter November 2010

On Sunday 14th November we had the last two planned workshops for 2010. As well as learning new techniques and completing interesting projects we had planned that on this occasion we would celebrate the forth coming Christmas festivities. As this weekend also commemorated Remembrance Day we joined in with the rest of the country with two minutes silence to remember the fallen in war.

With tutor Angela Smith, the jewellers experimented with a variety of ways of transferring images onto polymer clay using liquid clays and also waterslide transfers and T-shirt transfer paper.

Perhaps those of you that attended this workshop and have since produced pieces of finished jewellery - brooches, bracelets, pendants or earrings, would send us photos of your completed work for the December Newsletter.

With tutor Pat Goodall-MacIntosh, the miniaturists made Christmas decorations and silicone moulds for producing walnuts and chocolate truffles.

Following a questionnaire re: future activities members have requested we continue with the present format. A December newsletter will give details of the 2011 programme. Watch this space.
